Rep. Sheila Dills, R-Tulsa, meanwhile, has requested interim studies on educational management organizations and charter school sponsors. Dills has authored several bills that have increased transparency and accountability of charter school spending and regulations. Her studies this interim will review contractual agreements, competitive bidding, purchasing requirements and best practices among other topics.

"Educational choices are important to parents and students in Oklahoma," Dills said, "But we want to make sure that our charter school sponsors and educational management organizations are transparent in their use of taxpayer's dollars and adhering to state law."

Other interim studies scheduled before the House Common Education and Higher Education committees include one by Appropriations & Budget Vice Chair Kyle Hilbert, R-Bristow, that will examine public school districts that have used their federal COVID relief funds to help ensure student success during this academic year.

Hilbert wrote in his study request that the study will highlight successful, innovate programs, and explore opportunities to expand and continue these programs beyond the availability of federal relief funds. He suggests examining the public-school portion of Equal Opportunity Scholarships Funds included this year in Senate Bill 1080.

Another study poses the question: Higher education and engineering, a matter of national security – are we there yet? The study by Rep. Tammy West, R-Oklahoma City, will focus on higher education engineering and aerospace engineering programs and how they particularly could impact national security.

Common Education Chair Rhonda Baker has three education interim studies planned. Topics include ways to address the teacher shortage, including teacher certification and teacher quality; computer science education in Oklahoma public schools from elementary to high school; and a joint study with the Senate examining how COVID affected learning outcomes and ways to bring students back to level, spanning from kindergarten through college freshmen.

Interim studies will be scheduled from Aug. 2 through Nov. 5.

How Rising Construction Costs Could Impact Your Homeowners Insurance

If you recently started a home improvement project, you probably have noticed the rise in construction costs. According to Verisk's (ISO) most recent 360Value Quarterly Cost Update, total reconstruction costs increased 8.1% countrywide, on average, between January 2020 and January 2021. Lumber, iron, steel and labor costs all have increased in just a year. These drastic increases are not exclusive to building materials. These rising construction costs may have a significant impact on your homeowners insurance as well.

Homeowners insurance covers the cost to rebuild or repair your home after a loss or claim and construction costs directly correspond with the cost of home insurance. As construction costs increase, it's important to review your policy with your insurance agent or company to ensure your existing policy limits and coverages offer adequate protection. Here are three things you should consider when you talk to your agent.

Replacement Cost Coverage or Actual Cash Value Coverage

Take note of whether you have replacement cost coverage or actual cash value coverage. Replacement cost coverage would pay the cost of replacing something with a brandnew version. If your home is destroyed, replacement cost coverage will pay the cost of materials and labor needed to rebuild the structure. On the other hand, actual cash value coverage (often referenced as replacement cost minus depreciation) will pay the actual reduced value of an item. If your home was destroyed, the actual cash value would take into account the age of your home's walls, roof, floors, lighting, etc. You would only be paid for their depreciated value, not the cost of actually replacing them.

Coverage Adjustments

Ask questions to your insurer to determine whether you need to adjust your policy to have sufficient coverage in the event of a loss. Based on the spike in construction costs, your replacement cost may be underestimated, which may result in your home being underinsured. Your insurance agent can help reevaluate replacement cost estimates for your home and contents inside to ensure the appropriate coverage levels are in place.

Savings and Other Options

Ask your insurance agent or company about discounts. Many insurers offer multi-policy discounts to help consumers lower their insurance bills. Some insurers may offer discounts on smart home technology you've installed in your home. Also, don't forget you can always shop around. Please take advantage of our fair, competitive insurance market. There are over 900 homeowners insurance companies doing business in Oklahoma.

Lastly, I would caution against insuring for less or keeping your current coverage to avoid paying more on your premiums. The purpose of insurance is to cover you for risks so you do not have a high out-of-pocket cost in the event of a loss. If you need help selecting homeowners insurance, visit https://www.oid.ok.gov/ to compare local rates and find other helpful information.

For more insurance information, please contact the Oklahoma Insurance Department at 1-800-522-0071 or visit our website at www.oid.ok.gov.

SWOSU Internships at DRG Concludes for Summer

The two computer science majors worked on internal procurement software system upgrades and build-outs in addition to a broad exposure to DRG's corporate operations. Both students were the first students from SWOSU to intern with DRG.

The program was provided by SWOSU to expose students to the aerospace and defense industry in Oklahoma. The internships were funded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Space Grant College and Fellowship Program through SWOSU.

"We are honored to have facilitated these two students and hope their exposure to the industry will increase their desire to consider a career in the aerospace industry in Oklahoma," said Chairman and CEO Phil G. Busey Sr. "We hope to make this internship program grow with SWOSU and provide more students opportunity."

Headquartered in Oklahoma City, DRG has become a leading global aerospace defense contractor. The company provides critical aircrew training and contract support services to the U.S. military and Allied Nations all over the world. Two of the top four executives of DRG (brothers Brian Busey and Philip Busey Jr.) are SWOSU graduates.

SWOSU is a regional university with locations in Weatherford and Sayre and now offering classes in Yukon. The university serves over 5,000 students and has 14 nationally accredited programs and is nationally recognized for its online programs.

BECKHAMCOUNTY/SHOOTINGDEATH-Beckham County Sheriff Derek Manning says a Sayre man was fatally shot at a home about 5 miles south of Sayre during an alleged assault. Manning says 63 year old Jawade Boehme was pronounced dead at the scene after his mother reportedly shot him. Deputies say the 82 year old woman was found at the scene along with the weapon believed to have been used. Manning says no arrests have been made. He says there are questions of self defense. He says that determination will be made by the office of the district attorney once the investigation is complete.

CUSTER COUNTY/FATALITY- One person is dead, another is hospitalized and four others were treated and released, following a three vehicle accident on eastbound interstate 40, a quarter mile west of Weatherford. The Oklahoma Highway Patrol says 77 year old David Atchley of Clinton died at the scene. 70 year old Nancy Rhodes of Clinton was last listed in stable condition at OU Medical Center. Troopers say Atchley was driving in the wrong direction and struck the Rhodes vehicle, which then was struck by a vehicle driven by 47 year old Alfredo Flores of Oklahoma City. Flores and three passengers were treated and released.

WEATHERFORD PD/WEST ARREST- A Cordell man has been arrested on various charges, including domestic assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, stemming from an early morning incident last Tuesday. Weatherford police detective Matt Bartel says police arrested 23-year-old Brendon Mikal Tanner West for allegedly using a pipe to strike his ex-girlfriend during an altercation.

WEATHERFORD/HOTWORX- A local Hotworx franchise is under construction in downtown Weatherford. Officials say Hotworx is an infrared fitness studio. The company's website says it offers 3d training that can provide many benefits physically, including among other things, stress reduction, weight loss, lower blood pressure and detoxification.

With the selections, Cook becomes a three-time All-America Scholar while Brown and Weck join previous recipients Marques Gomez (2016-17), Stefan Idstam (2016-17) and Wouter MyBurgh (2012-13) as twotime award winners.

Yukon Public Schools & SWOSU Honored for Partnership

Yukon Public Schools (YPS) was among business and higher education partnerships throughout Oklahoma that were recently recognized as innovative collaborations that further the education of Oklahoma's workforce.

The Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education honored Southwestern Oklahoma State University (SWOSU) and YPS's partnership with its Business Partnership Excellence Award.

SWOSU has a unique relationship with YPS. In early 2020, Dr. Chad Kinder, dean of the SWOSU College of Professional and Graduate Studies, began collaborating with YPS Superintendent Dr. Jason Simeroth and Assistant Superintendent Lance Haggard on a program to encourage YPS faculty and staff to pursue advanced degrees from SWOSUthe Master of Business Administration and Education Administration Master of Education. YPS currently has 97 employees enrolled in SWOSU degree programs. This program allows YPS employees to take classes, offered by SWOSU practicing professionals, at Yukon Public Schools.

Simeroth sees this as an opportunity to recruit and retain quality teachers and administrators. The program is an incentive for recruiting employees who want to further their education at an affordable rate, retaining loyal employees who appreciate the investment, and building a more skilled workforce. This program has made it possible for many YPS paraprofessionals to earn bachelor's degrees and remain with the school system as teachers.

This program took off at just the right time for SWOSU. As universities were seeing a downturn in enrollment, SWOSU's program experienced growth as YPS employees enrolled in these education programs. This has not only helped build the university's education program, but now community members and employees from nearby schools are taking advantage of opportunities to take university classes in education, business and technology right in their own area at Yukon Public Schools.

SWOSU at Yukon LogoSWOSU President Dr. Diana Lovell is excited about the partnership with YPS and is impressed on how the project continues to develop.

The Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education's Regents Business Partnership Excellence Award is designed to highlight successful partnerships between higher education institutions and businesses and to further cultivate the higher learning environment through State Regents' Economic Development Grants.

Institutions involved in these partnerships provide $500 for tuition waivers to employees of the partnering businesses; internships that enable current students to work at the partnering businesses; faculty externships with the partnering businesses; and/or enhancement of the partnerships with additional equipment, materials or supplies. The State Regents provide a $500 match to the waivers.

"The Coin Guy" 1855-C Indian Head gold dollar

Afficionados of gold coins are enamored with the 1855-C (Charlotte, N.C.) one dollar gold Indian Head design. Their tiny size of 15 millimeters in diameter and weighing a mere 1.67 grams would make one think "How could such a small coin circulate"?

These $1 gold coins were minted on a thinner planchette which provided a challenge for the U.S. Mint at Charlotte. Uncirculated examples of the above coin are rare. The known surviving population of Charlotte gold is likely fewer.

This 1855-C $1 gold coin was certified by the Professional Coin Grading Service (PCGS) as a Mint State 61. PCGS has certified only six uncirculated examples but, none are finer than the one above. This 1855-C $1 gold coin sold at auction for $20,400.

Do you have questions regarding buying gold coins but did not know who to ask? Call The Coin Guy at 580-890-8076. We can meet at Jerry's and discuss them over a cold drink. Thanks for reading.

HIGHER GROUND Not a Spectator Sport

In Hebrews 13:21 the writer prays "May the God of peace...equip you with Jim Morrison everything good for doing his will, and may he work in us what is pleasing to him, through Jesus Christ to whom be glory forever and ever."

We get the picture that the Christian life is not a spectator sport. There is a game plan for winning the world for Christ. It involves each of us being in the army of God. We are equipped to do battle against an enemy who is out to steal, kill, and destroy our young people, to divide families, to drive people to spend more than they make so they can keep up with their peers, thus making it impossible for them to assist ministries that desperately need their help to advance the kingdom.

Moffat said, "The Christian life must not be an initial spasm followed by a chronic inertia." There is often an initial enthusiasm when we realize our sins have been forgiven and we have an eternal home in heaven and then when the emotional glow wears off we settle back into the comfortable routines of following the path of least resistance with little cross bearing or sacrifice. We lose sight of what we have been cleansed from.

Salvation is all of faith but a faith that does not issue forth in a changed life is no faith at all. Faith is not only a commitment to the promises of Christ it is also a commitment to the demands of Christ. Many people use the word faith in a vague way with faith in faith as the goal. Faith without an objective is just wishful thinking. Faith is the conviction that what Jesus said is true. Faith is the absolute certainly that we can commit ourselves to his promises and his demands on our lives. It is the belief that the only way to peace and joy in this life is to accept him at his word.

Life at its noblest and its best happens when our effort co-operates with God's grace, to produce the consistent life that is under the Master's control and we see ourselves as His servant.

Peter writes in his second letter that we should add to our faith goodness, and to goodness, knowledge, and to knowledge, self-control; and to self-control, perseverance, godliness, and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, love. II Peter 1:5-7.

He goes on to say that if we "possess these qualities in increasing measure, (growing in Christ) they will keep you from being ineffective and unproductive in your knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But if anyone does not have them, he is near sighted and blind, and has forgotten that he has been cleansed from his past sins." (II Peter 1:8,9)

Be all the more eager to make your calling and election sure. Work out your salvation with fear and trembling. Get excited about what God is doing in your life and in the world around you. Ask him to do a new and fresh work in your life; to broaden your vision about the kingdom. Take the blinders off and look around you at a hurting world and begin each day by asking God "show me today how I can be used of you to advance the kingdom." the Cherokee, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Muscogee (Creek), and Seminole tribes. The dream was to create a state under Native American constitution and governance as a way to allow the tribes to maintain control over their lands.

The lost State of Sequoyah,

one of the few U.S.'s states lost to history (like Translyvania, Texlahoma, Absaroka, or even "Lost Dakota"). As one of the select group of "states that almost were", the State of Sequoyah was conceived

back in 1905 by members of the Five Civilized Tribes

- Native Americans from

These tribal governments were being pressured to give up control of Indian Territory after the passing of the Curtis Act of 1898, an amendment designed to break-up communal lands in past Oklahoma territory, lay out town plans, allot land, and ultimately pave the way for the region to reach statehood. The "coercion" to move these tribes stemmed from the uniquely complicated statehood preparation Oklahoma was receiving.

For much of the western United States land, a simple Organic Act passed by Congress was enough to begin the work of transitioning a territory into a state. However, Oklahoma's own Organic Act, instead, came about through a series of legislative acts that would first break the state into two parts: Oklahoma Territory and Indian Territory. These new Organized territories would then face a system of Reconstruction following the American Civil War featuring relocation, treaties, and land purchases with each step more complicated than the last. Ultimately, the Oklahoma Organic Act would then merge the two territories into a unified State of Oklahoma.

But, before its official state status was realized, members of the Indian Territory, which controlled the entire eastern half of the state and 13% of the future state's population, issued an announcement for a constitutional convention to meet. The convention (spurned on by the fact that much of the Native American population and land had been recently lost due to land cessions, land runs, and treaties) met on August 21st, 1905, in Muskogee. At the convention, a president and vice presidents were decided from among the tribes, a constitution was drafted, a map with their governing counties was drawn up, a seal was made, and delegates to the United States Congress were assigned. Each of the Five Civilized Tribes agreed with majority votes to approve the constitution and statehood petition, settling on the name Sequoyah in honor of the Cherokee who created a writing system for the Cherokee language (making reading and writing in Cherokee possible).

A campaign to bolster the state's chances when it went to Congress was carried out up to the November 7th election. The proposal was shot down in Congress after little deliberation squashing the hopes of a future State of Sequoyah. However, President Theodore Roosevelt, who was a proponent of the idea, proposed a compromise that would join the Indian and Oklahoma Territories together to form a single state. Both sides agreed, terms were set, and the Oklahoma Enabling Act of 1906 was signed by President Roosevelt.

With both territories bringing their own ways of governing to the table, further compromises had to be made and requirements laid out. For example, the Osage Indian Reservation would be organized separately in the state, and "nothing...in the said constitution shall...limit or impair the rights...pertaining to the Indians of said Territories". After all the fine details were hashed out, the State of Oklahoma officially joined the United States on November 7th, 1905.

While the State of Sequoyah would never see its own star placed on the American Flag, the constitution its members created would play an important role in shaping the Oklahoma Constitution we know of today, and many of the leaders present at the convention would go on to have a solid voice in the future of Oklahoma.
