Summer programs kicking off in Western Oklahoma

Summer Programs are slated to kick-off this year all over western Oklahoma. Camps, retreats, church programs, and more are beginning to post sign-up info and dates.

SWOSU in Weatherford has a multitude of camps coming during 2021’s summer. These include their Summer Music camps and a Summer Science and Math Academy (SSMA). The music camps will include individual camps for String, Marimba, Choral, Solo Voice, and Middle School and High School Band camps. SSMA will be a two-week experience for high school juniors and seniors where they’ll take a variety of classes over science, problem-solving, and communication – laboratory and field-experience will be included.

Clinton’s Summer Playground will be held between June 1st and July 23rd at Southwest Elementary and the public pool. Children will be able to participate in activities focused on arts & crafts, reading, science experiments, games, field trips, and swimming; free breakfast and lunch are included. Registration is available for children who have completed kindergarten through 5th grade, and who are attending Clinton schools. Sign-ups are $100 for all of summer, with a $50 deposit for registration, due by July 3rd.

The Stafford Air and Space Museum will be holding their new 2021 program Camp Invention: Recharge in June and July. The camp features an “innovative and fun hands-on STEM experience” for kids entering grades K – 6th. During the camp, campers will learn how engineering soundwaves work, build/test launching devices to learn how trajectory and velocity are affected by physics, create a robotic and solar-powered cricket and custom habitats to match, and build problem-solving skills as they adapt and design a morphing vehicle to compete in a Super Road Rally. Registration for the camp can be done through the museum’s event page and is $245 per child. There will be two available weeks for the camp: Camp 1 will be held on June 21st – June 25th, from 9 AM – 3:30 PM; Camp 2 will be held on July 19th – July 23rd, from 9 AM – 3:30 PM. If guidelines for COVID protocols are altered and do not allow in-person camps, the museum will offer an alternative, at-home program that will provide materials directly to your home.

These are just a few of the potential summer programs available. Other options include: church camps, Super Summer, local Vacation Bible Schools, sport camps, summer reading programs, Southwest Playhouse performances, and more. Check with your local organizations' and cities' schedules to see sign-ups and dates for camps near you. All camps and programs will be taking necessary precautions to ensure all attendees have the highest level of safety and fun during this summer.

SWOSU Bestows Linda Redinger Lifetime Achievement Award on Jim Waites

Southwestern Oklahoma State University (SWOSU) has announced Jim Waites (Classes of 1969 & 1971) of Weatherford is the first-ever recipient of the Linda Redinger Lifetime Achievement Award.

The Linda Redinger Lifetime Achievement Award was established in 2016 in honor of SWOSU alumnae Linda Redinger (Class of 1976). Redinger served nearly three decades as treasurer of the SWOSU Alumni Association. She passed away in 2020.

Waites served SWOSU from September 1990 to December 2010 as vice president for the Office of Institutional Advancement and executive director of the SWOSU Foundation, Inc.

"During his tenure as SWOSU's chief advancement officer, Jim Waites built a heritage of philanthropic excellence that we are honored to carry forth today," said SWOSU Foundation, Inc. Executive Director Garrett King. "Jim served loyally and selflessly under three SWOSU presidents, and we know that so many of the good things that we are able to achieve on the Hilltop today are thanks, in great measure, to Jim's innovation, hard work and vision."

King said the SWOSU Foundation, Inc. Board of Trustees and the SWOSU Alumni Association and Athletic Association Boards of Directors are honored to pay tribute to Waites' legacy by naming him the first-ever recipient of the Linda Redinger Lifetime Achievement Award.

Weatherford.

First National President & CEO Herschel Brewster joined Beutler and Hibler in reflecting on Waites' critical role in helping to build SWOSU's capacity for effective fundraising and alumni outreach, robust donor engagement and professional stewardship of endowed gifts.

King said Waites led SWOSU through its first and sequential formal fundraising campaigns and launched a wide array of new initiatives and activities that greatly strengthened the university's charitable partners at the Foundation as well as the Alumni and Athletic Associations.

HIGHER GROUND Letting Their Light Shine

Jim Morrison

While many of us are turned off by the huge salaries paid to major league baseball players, perhaps it would be helpful to know something of the personal life and faith of some of them.

While Albert Pujols career appears to have ended with his release from the Los Angeles Angels, his contributions to charity through community contributions and mission efforts will linger long after his baseball career is over. Noted for his off the field contributions to the community and mission endeavors, his former teammates have nothing but the utmost respect for him. Mark Gubuczka, former teammate said, "one of the nicest and most genuine human beings I ever met." Jered Weaver, likewise said, "I loved playing with him. What he did off the field—amazing!" An outspoken Christian, his philanthropic efforts were sizeable.

Another outstanding and highly paid player is Adam

Wainright, who is in his 16th year as a pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals. Recently, his wife and five children all came down with Covid-19. His wife was hit hard and texted Adam, "I can't go on like this, I need your help." With the full support of his manager he immediately took 10 days off to help his family through the crisis. Widely known for his community support, he contributed $250,000 to a project "More than Baseball," which gave assistance to Minor League players who were not being paid during the non-season of minor league play of 2020. He recently led a project to lead 22,000 people to read the Bible through in a year.

Clayton Kershaw, three-time Cy Young winner, together with his wife Ellen are well known for their mission/ humanitarian work and philanthropic endeavors. They have been heavily involved in pressuring the Dominican Supreme Court to make child marriage unconstitutional.

Garret Whitlock, a draft-five signing by the Red Sox from the rival Yankees, shared about his faith, stating that the most important thing in his life was his relationship with Jesus Christ. In January he was involved with his home church in 21 days of prayer to begin the year. His request at that time was, "If I can't be humble, don't let me make it." (referring to his chance of making it to the big leagues.) He has made it and is doing well.

Kyle Gibson of the Texas Rangers, is quoted as saying, "Everybody (Followers of Christ) is an evangelist and has a duty for evangelism."

It is not that these profile athletes are doing more than a widow who faithfully tithes out of her Social Security check and prays for her pastor; they just have more opportunity. Rather than being critical of athletes for taking what wealthy owners are willing to pay, perhaps we should pray for Christian athletes who have been given much and now much is required. They have a platform, which few have, from which they can let their light shine, and resources that will make a difference. Almost, if not every team has a baseball chapel in which those who wish to can gather for a brief time of Bible study and prayer. If you have a teen-ager who is sports crazy, a good investment would be to subscribe to "Sports Spectrum." This magazine highlights Christian athletes from many sports who unashamedly speak of their faith.

Eleven Southwestern Oklahoma State University biology students in Weatherford recently presented their research findings at the virtual 2021 Beta Beta Beta (Tri Beta) National Biological Honor Society South Central Region Convention.

Eighteen universities from Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas had students participate in this annual convention.

Bryler Atchley of Clinton and Denton Parsells of Oklahoma City (Bethany) won first and third place, respectively, for the Frank G. Brooks Award for Outstanding Oral Presentation. Both Atchley and Parsells were previously awarded student research grants from the honor society.

Also, Makayla Hicks of Moore and Shawn Bounkhong of Springdale (AR) won first and third place, respectively, for the John C. Johnson Award for Outstanding Poster Presentation.

Atchley's presentation was "Characterization of the Antimicrobial Properties of Syringafactin". His mentor for the work was Dr. Regina McGrane, associate professor in the SWOSU Department of Biological Sciences.

Parsells' presentation was "Sexual Selection in Response to Varying Levels of Eutrophication". His mentor for this work was Dr. Rickey Cothran, chair and associate professor in the Department of Biological Sciences.

Hicks' presentation was "Evaluating pathogenicity of Pseudomonas aeruginosa by manipulating genes associated with motility and biofilm formation". Her mentor for this work was McGrane.

Bounkhong's presentation was "Characterization of Biosurfactant Chemoreceptors in Pseudomonas aeruginosa". His mentor for the work was McGrane.

Other SWOSU students presenting were: Caden Bowles, Hannah Budde, Trey Cossey, Kade Ezell, Raistlin Hiner, Ethan Long and Tommy Nguyen.

First place winners will receive financial support to attend the 2022 Tri Beta National Convention in Oklahoma City, which will also celebrate the 100th anniversary of the honor society.

Women's Rodeo Continues Dominance, Wins Central Plains Regional Championship

Doug Self
SWOSU Sports Information Director

The SWOSU Women's Rodeo team won their third consecutive rodeo over the weekend, besting the rest of the Central Plains Region at Colby, Kansas, to secure the 2021 Regional Championship and a spot in the 2021 College National Finals Rodeo.

The event at Colby capped off a magnificent spring by the Bulldog Women, who have now won four rodeos and finished as the runner up at three others. SWOSU has not finished any lower than second since consecutive fourth-place finishes to open the season and they won the region over Oklahoma State by more than 600 points. For their efforts, the Bulldogs will send four cowgirls to Casper, Wyoming, for the CNFR in June, including regional champions Abby Hepper (Barrel Racing) and Sierra Smith (Goat Tying) along with Winter Williams (2nd, All-Around) and Sadie Wolaver (2nd, Barrel Racing).

The SWOSU Men's Team had another fine weekend as well, placing second at the rodeo behind Southeastern, but the Bulldogs were overtaken for second place in the region by the Savage Storm. SWOSU, which won two rodeos and had six top-three placings in nine rodeos this spring, will send Tim Troyer and Wyatt Lohman to the CNFR in Saddle Bronc after Troyer won the region and Lohman placed second.

In addition, at the conclusion of the circuit, the NIRA announced the contestant-voted award for Central Plains Rodeo of the Year, which was awarded to the Bulldogs for the 48th Annual SWOSU Rodeo, which was held in Weatherford on April 8-10.

SWOSU's six CNFR contestants will rest up for over a month before heading to Casper for the 2021 CNFR, which takes place on June 13-19.

Lady Dawgs Finish Sixth at Central Regional

Doug Self
SWOSU Sports Information Director

SWOSU Women's Golf concluded their 2021 spring season on Wednesday with a sixth-place finish at the NCAA Division II Central Regional, hosted on Monday-Wednesday at St. Joseph Country Club.

SWOSU was tied for second place after the opening round, in which each of the four scoring golfers carded a round of 78 or better. Windy weather conditions on Tuesday caused the scores to rise and left the Lady Bulldogs in seventh heading into Wednesday's final round, when they were able to move back up the leaderboard one spot to finish tied with Augustana in sixth place.

Mikaela Rindermann led the way for SWOSU with rounds of 77, 79 and 75, which left her alone in ninth place at 15-over par for the tournament. She was one spot away from qualifying for the NCAA Division II National Championships as an individual, with the top three individuals on a non-advancing team qualifying to compete as an individual. Megan Brown was four shots behind Rindermann with bookend rounds of 76 wrapped around an 83 in the second round and Rebecca Lau was tied for 23rd.

"I'm really proud of the way our girls competed throughout the season, but especially this week in St. Joseph," SWOSU Head Golf Coach Brad Fleetwood said. "Things didn't go our way on Tuesday, but we kept battling and came back strong on Wednesday and that's all I can ask from our team. The future is bright for the Lady Bulldogs with this group of young women in our program!"

This is the eighth consecutive appearance in the NCAA Division II Central Regional for the SWOSU Women's Golf program and all five players who competed in the regional for the Lady Bulldogs are expected back next season.

President Randy L. Beutler Endowment Established at SWOSU

Southwestern Oklahoma State University (SWOSU) with locations in Weatherford and Sayre has announced the establishment of the President Randy L. Beutler Endowment.

The endowment will provide financial assistance in perpetuity to SWOSU students, faculty and programs in honor of outgoing SWOSU President Randy L. Beutler.

The SWOSU Foundation, Inc. Board of Trustees, along with a generous group of over 70 preliminary underwriters from throughout Oklahoma and the United States, have already contributed almost $80,000 to the endowment.

The public is now invited to contribute to help the fund exceed $100,000. Each contribution will be recognized personally by President Beutler. Contributions may be made by:

Visiting www.GiveToSWOSU.com;

Mailing a check payable to "SWOSU Foundation" with "Beutler Endowment" noted in the memorandum line to SWOSU Foundation, 100 Campus Drive, Weatherford, OK 73096; or,

Calling the SWOSU Foundation, Inc. offices at 580-774-3267 to make a gift using a credit/debit card.

"Randy Beutler has been an outstanding champion for SWOSU's alumni, emeriti and friends," said SWOSU Foundation, Inc. Board of Trustees Chair George Cohlma of Oklahoma City (Class of 1974). "We are honored to establish this endowment as a way of saying 'thank you' for his leadership in building new donor relationships, responsibly stewarding major gifts, and enhancing reunion activities like Homecoming and the Distinguished Alumni festivities."

Beutler was named the 17th president of SWOSU in February 2010. When he retires on July 1, 2021, he will be completing nearly 12 years leading the institution, becoming the fourth longest-serving president in institutional history.

Under his leadership, SWOSU has seen many projects and milestones accomplished. The largest building project in the history of the university was completed under his watch. The 93,000 square foot Pioneer Cellular Event Center was opened in January 2014. In addition, the ground-breaking partnership with Yukon Public Schools was conceived and implemented during Beutler's tenure. He has also worked closely with the President's Leadership Class, which he developed while working under former SWOSU President, the late John Hays.

Prior to being named president of SWOSU, Beutler taught history and government for several years at Weatherford High School. In 1992, he was elected to the Oklahoma House of Representatives for District 60. During his tenure there, Beutler rose to the position of Majority Whip. He currently is a partner in Beutler-Redd Ranches, Limited, a cow-calf ranch that operates north of Elk City.

The President Randy L. Beutler Endowment is stewarded by the SWOSU Foundation, Inc. An institutionally-related charitable entity, the Foundation was established in 1977 to promote philanthropy, award scholarships and distribute funds to support the activities and programs of SWOSU. Located on the Weatherford campus in the historic Burton House, the Foundation currently stewards over $29 million in assets for the benefit of SWOSU.

"The Coin Guy" Collector Finds Rare Half Disme for $1.00

Trent Boesen

An anonymous collector from Washington bought an old-looking coin from a junk box for $1. It turned out to be a rare coin from 1792. The U.S. Mint in Philadelphia turned the silver into coins.

It is known President Washington, and his wife Martha, donated their personal silver service to the Mint in 1792. It was coined as a half disme (pronounced "deem" in French). About 1,500 half dismes were minted and put into circulation.

The half disme was certified by the Professional Coin Grading Service as a genuine Fair 2.

On June 13, 2021, it will be auctioned online by GreatCollections.com in Irvine, California. The pre-auction estimates are running from $18,000 to $25,000.

If you have questions about collecting coins but did not know who to ask? Call "The Coin Guy" at 580-890-8076 so we can meet at Jerry's and discuss them. Thanks for reading.

Oklahoma History: OKC History

Chase Wright
Staff Writer

On the morning of April 19th, 1995, the United States experienced what would become the biggest terrorist attack on the nation's soil prior to September 11th, 2001. After 9 AM, a Ryder rental truck, armed with a homemade diesel-fuel-fertilizer bomb ignited such a forceful explosion outside the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in downtown Oklahoma City that it blew off the entire north wall. The massive blast left over 300 buildings in the surrounding area damaged or destroyed. When emergency crews finished the two-week-long rescue effort, 168 people were reported dead, including 19 children with more than 650 others injured.

At the time, the nation was still coping with the tragedy of the World Trade Center bombing two years earlier. Immediately following the blast, many Americans began to assume the OKC bombing was instigated by Middle Eastern terrorists, and the FBI began their search for clues. On April 20th, as they sifted through debris, they located the Ryder truck and found the VIN number still attached to the rear axle. The VIN led agents to a body shop in Kansas where employees put together a drawing of the man who rented the van. After asking around town, the agents caught a lead from a hotel employee who believed they recognized the man. They had his name: Tim McVeigh. A massive manhunt for the biggest suspect in the worst terrorist attack on U.S. soil was launched.

It did not last long. On April 21st, a day after pushing his photo and name out with the Bureau's Criminal Justice Information Services Division in West Virginia, his location popped up: he was already in jail. When McVeigh left the scene prior to detonating the bomb, he was driving a yellow Mercury Marquis. He only got 80 miles north of OKC when an Oklahoma State Trooper noticed his missing license plate. During the traffic stop, McVeigh was found to be carrying a concealed weapon and was arrested, just 90 minutes after the bombing.

Evidence against McVeigh began piling up. According to FBI case files, "Agents found traces of the chemicals used in the explosion on McVeigh's clothes and a business card on which McVeigh had scribbled, "TNT @ $5/stick, need more." When drudging up his past, they found out the 27-year-old former U.S. Army soldier had moved away from his hatred of communist governments and had become suspicious of the U.S. federal government and President Clinton's view on gun control; potentially, after failing to qualify for the Special Forces program and accepting the Army's offer for an early discharge. The FBI found out that he had become friends with a man named Terry Nichols during their time in the army, and that they stayed in touch and were a part of an extremist right-wing group out of Michigan. After the 51-day Waco, Texas, raid between the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) and a sect of Branch Davidians, and their leader David Koresh, ended in an inferno with 75 members of the Davidian sect perishing in 1993, McVeigh and Nichols began plotting their move. The target: The Murrah building in Oklahoma City which housed the ATF, among other agencies. When they set off the bomb on April 19th, it was the two-year anniversary of the Waco standoff.

The same day McVeigh was discovered behind bars, authorities located Nichols in Herington, Kansas. The initial manhunt was over, but to ensure no legal precedent would go unchecked, the FBI began the most exhaustive investigation in their history. "The Bureau had conducted more than 28,000 interviews, followed some 43,000 investigative leads, amassed three-and-a-half tons of evidence, and reviewed nearly a billion pieces of information." In their search, information came forward that led them to another name: Michael Fortier. Fortier knew of the pair's plan to bomb the federal building, and on August 8th, for a reduced sentence, agreed to testify against McVeigh and Nichols. Nichols was sentenced to 161 counts of first-degree murder and received 161 consecutive life terms in prison; on June 2nd, 1997, Timothy McVeigh was sentenced to be executed under unanimous jury recommendation. In June of 2001, McVeigh's execution by lethal injection was carried out, the first federal death penalty since 1963.

On October 9th, 1997, President Clinton authorized the Oklahoma City National Memorial Museum, and it was listed on the National Register of Historic Places the same day. The Memorial is located at the site of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building after its remains were cleared for safety concerns. The Memorial was formally dedicated on April 19th, 2000, on the 5th anniversary of the bombing. The Memorial features many symbolic locales available day or night, including The Gates of Time – twin bronze gates with the marks "9:01" the last moments of peace and "9:03" the first moments of recovery, the Field of Empty Chairs – 168 hand-crafted glass, bronze, and stone chairs etched with names of the ones who lost their lives, The Survivors' Wall – the last remaining portions of the Murrah building inscribed with the names of over 600 survivors, The Memorial Fence, a 10-foot-tall chain link fence, originally put up to protect the site and visitors from injury, became known for visitors leaving a variety of stuffed animals, poems, and tributes. The Children's Area, an area dedicated to more than 5,000 hand-painted tiles made by children from all over the US and Canada, were sent in after the bombing.

Alfred P Murrah building

In 2001, an Oklahoma City Memorial Marathon was held through the streets and neighborhoods of Oklahoma City. Under 5,000 participated, but now the over 25,000 registered runners have come from around the globe for RUNtoREMEMBER. Funds raised through the marathon support the Memorial and Museum operations.

In the end, an evil act was caught and punished swiftly by the same organizations it sought to destroy, and the people it aimed to shatter have grown stronger by repairing each other.
